WHY HAVE TWO REGIONS FOR LAKES & PONDS?

Lakes and ponds have different General Law Season dates and Brook Trout Bag Limits depending on region, North or South, illustrated to the left.

Lakes and ponds that are managed for trout and salmon in the south region are predominantly stocked waters, whereas those in the north region often have wild populations. General Fishing Laws reflect the different management needs for the two regions, and typically allow more angling opportunity (i.e. fall or year round fishing) for stocked salmonids.

License Requirements & Fees

WHO NEEDS A LICENSE?

A valid Maine fishing license is required for anyone 16 years of age or older, to fish in inland waters or transport fish taken from inland waters.

HOW ARE LICENSES OBTAINED?

Residents and nonresidents may obtain fishing licenses from agents throughout the State (sporting goods stores, many convenience stores, town clerks and turnpike service centers, online at mefishwildlife.com or from our Department office in Augusta.

Note: Not all town clerks issue nonresident licenses

OTHER FISHING LICENSE PROVISIONS

A person is required to keep his/her fishing license with him/her at all times while fishing or transporting fish and must exhibit their license for inspection by any warden, department employee, guide or landowner upon request. An electronic license or permit can now be displayed in lieu of a physical paper license or permit.

Possession of fishing tackle in the fields or forest or on the waters or ice of this State without a fishing license is prima facie evidence of fishing in violation of the law.

The commissioner may allow a licensee who has received a complimentary fishing license (See General Fishing Laws and Definitions) to have a person accompany and assist that licensee in fishing. The person accompanying and assisting the holder of a complimentary fishing license may do so without obtaining a separate fishing license. This subsection does not authorize the person accompanying and assisting the licensee to assist that licensee with more than one fishing rod and reel. The person accompanying and assisting the licensee must remain within the immediate proximity of the licensee while that licensee is fishing. ■

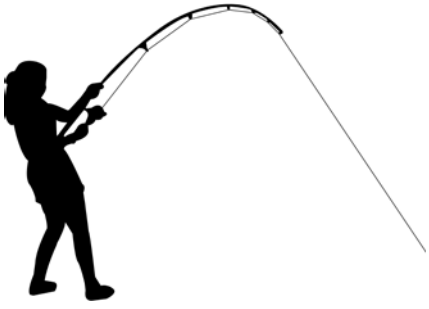
MAINE LIFETIME LICENSE

Pass on a Maine Tradition and a Gift that will Last a Lifetime

Your investment in a lifetime license for yourself or as a gift, will allow the bearer to fish, trap, and/or hunt for their lifetime, regardless of where they will live in the future. The revenues generated by the sale of these licenses will be deposited in a special trust fund that will provide long-term financial support for Maine's fish and wildlife.



Applicants 70 Years of Age

For a one-time fee of $8.00, a senior lifetime license entitles the holder to all privileges they are qualified to receive including hunting, trapping, archery, and fishing. The license also includes the following: bear hunt, bear trap, migratory waterfowl, pheasant, spring and fall turkey, coyote night hunt, crossbow, muzzleloader, one expanded archery antlerless deer permit, and one expanded archery either-sex permit. (Must still apply for any-deer and moose permits each year when applications become available.)

Note: If you purchased a senior lifetime license before age 70, you do NOT have to pay the $8.00 fee, and the permits listed in the previous paragraph are included with your lifetime license anytime during the calendar year you turn 70 years of age. For more information about the Lifetime License Program, please call (207) 287-8000. ■

SUPERPACK LICENSE

To be eligible for this license, the applicant must be a Maine resident. This license permits a person who has met the eligibility requirements for each license or permit to hunt and fish for all legal game and fish species subject to all of the laws covering these activities; fishing, hunting, and archery. The Superpack license includes muzzleloader, crossbow, migratory waterfowl, pheasant, spring/fall turkey, bear, coyote night hunt, and three expanded archery antlerless permits. The Superpack license also includes one free chance in the moose lottery and entry into a special category in the annual any-deer permit lottery.

Regulating Harvest

Some Management Techniques and their Effects

In North America, fishing regulations were implemented well before the turn of the 20th century. For example, season closures for some marine fisheries were implemented as early as the 1600s and by the time of the American Revolution, numerous statutes were in place regulating fish harvest. Since the 1960s there has been a broad trend toward more restrictive harvest regulations including the reduction in the number of fish that can be harvested and the use of restrictive length limits. Additionally, water and species-specific regulations have become common throughout the United States. Whereas seasonal closures and creel limits were often the only regulations implemented at the turn of the 20th century, slot length limits and length-based creel limits are now used more widely to control harvest.

Fishing regulations are implemented for many reasons. In Maine, fishing regulations are implemented to improve fishing quality or to maintain population viability, to alter community dynamics, or to encourage the control of exotic species from certain waters. In addition, fishing regulations can be applied for public safety concerns, such as consumption advisories due to contaminants (e.g., lead, mercury, PCBs). Regulations may also be implemented for social reasons, such as accommodating the desires of individual user groups. Both social and biological data are used by our Fisheries Division when implementing or altering fishing regulations and policies. Suffice to say, developing, maintaining, and changing fishing regulations is no easy task! With any regulation, careful design and regular monitoring are essential in order to be effective.

If you've fished in Maine then you may recognize that state-wide there are a diversity of fishing regulations that all anglers must follow. Fishing regulations are as diverse as the people of Maine and are based on many factors, including the water body, location, water quality, species composition, and the desires of anglers. Below are some fisheries management techniques that we hope define and explain why certain regulations exist.

General Law: This regulation provides basic protection to stocked and wild fish. General law encourages early harvest where angler pressure is moderate to high which can maximize growth rate potential of individual fish not harvested in the fishery. This regulation can provide good catch rates and harvest opportunities.

Low Bag Limits: Lower bag limits are intended to distribute the catch over a longer period of time and among more anglers. Low bag limits usually coincide with restrictive regulations such as high minimum length limits.

Slot Limits: These regulations are bound by the upper and lower length limits with the intent of directing harvest to specific parts of a fish population while protecting others. A slot limit may be used to "thin out" smaller fish to allow remaining fish to grow faster and enable large fish to be caught and released or kept. The protected size slot protects fish and allows them to continue to grow and reach a larger size class. Anglers are important with this regulation! Without harvesting fish of a given size, the regulation does little for management of the resource.

Catch and Release: This regulation is intended to return fish to the water alive, thus giving them the chance to grow larger and be caught again. This regulation may be effective on waters where natural recruitment and population size is very low and growth rates are excellent, or on waters where there is a strict need for conservation (imperiled or endangered species, for instance).

Fly Fishing or Artificial Lures Only: These "terminal tackle" regulations are applied to reduce mortalities in released fish and are often an effective and necessary companion to restrictive bag and length limits.

No Live Fish as Bait: This regulation is typically applied to reduce the risk of establishing unwanted bait populations in landlocked salmon or brook trout waters, while still allowing the use of dead baitfish or artificial lures.

Bait Dealers & Use of Baitfish

IMPORTATION OF BAITFISH PROHIBITED

It is unlawful to import any live baitfish or smelts into Maine.

BAIT DEALER'S LICENSE

It is unlawful for any person to deal in live baitfish or live smelts without first obtaining a valid dealer's license. For further information, contact MDIFW.

Note: A person may take live baitfish for their own use, by the use of hook and line or bait trap only, if that person holds a valid fishing license.

MARKING HOLES

When using drop nets to fish through the ice for baitfish/smelts, all holes made in the ice must be marked either by evergreen boughs placed around the hole, or by suspending at least 1 strand of fluorescent biodegradable tape at least 3 feet above the ice around the entire perimeter of the hole so that the tape is visible from all sides.

STORING LIVE BAITFISH

Live baitfish may not be stored or held in any waters where the use or possession of live fish as bait is prohibited during the entire ice fishing season or the entire open water fishing season. This includes waters restricted to the use of artificial lures only, waters restricted to fly fishing, and where there are other prohibitions on the use of live fish as bait. To obtain a list of Maine waters where baitfish cannot be stored please contact MDIFW's Augusta Office, or visit mefishwildlife.com.

TAKING OF BAITFISH FOR PERSONAL USE

All waters are open to the taking of baitfish for personal use, including rivers, streams and brooks, unless designated "closed to the taking of live baitfish" (see Special Fishing Laws beginning on page 5).

- Any person with a valid Maine fishing license may take baitfish for their personal use.
- Baitfish taken are for personal use only and may not be sold without a bait dealers license.
- All baitfish traps and holding cages must be labeled with the owner's name and address.
- Baitfish traps may not exceed 50 cubic feet in volume.
- Baitfish traps must be tended at least once every 7 days by the person who set them.

The following species are considered legal baitfish. Any species of fish not listed below, except smelt, may not be used as bait (live or dead) for fishing in inland waters. All other fish species must be immediately released alive into the water where they were captured.

- Blacknose Shiner

- Golden Shiner
- Spottail Shiner
- Blacknose Dace
- Finescale Dace
- Northern Redbelly Dace

- Creek Chub
- Lake Chub
- Eastern Silvery Minnow
- Fathead Minnow Fallfish
- Longnose Sucker
- White Sucker
- Banded Killifish
- Mummichog
- American Eel

Always seek landowner permission before crossing private land to trap baitfish. ■

TROUBLE BY THE BUCKETFUL

That's what the illegal introduction of exotic species brings to Maine's waters.

Some thoughtless individuals are attempting to destroy the future of Maine's native fisheries. These non-sportsmen illegally stock the type of fish they prefer to catch, without regard for the environmental havoc they inflict on the resource. Illegal stocking selfishly denies the people of Maine the right to decide what is best for our waters.

Please help fight this serious problem.

- It is illegal to transport live fish without a permit except legal baitfish or smelts.
- It is illegal to dump unused baitfish into any waterway.
- There is a $10,000 fine for a conviction of illegal stocking.
- Always keep your ears and eyes open for those who are committing these senseless acts.
- If convicted, the license revocation has increased from 1 to 5 years.

Illegal Fish Introductions

The Largest Threat to Maine's Fish Populations & Fishing Heritage

In recent years Maine's lakes and rivers have experienced dozens of illegal fish introductions that pose real and immediate threats to our native fish populations and our traditional fisheries.

Unauthorized introductions of invasive, exotic fish species are particularly destructive to Maine's native fish species, especially brook trout populations. Introductions of invasive fish cause irreversible changes to entire aquatic ecosystems. Strategies to eliminate or control invasive fish are difficult to design and implement, costly, and are only effective in limited situations.

Recent news about strange South American fish (pacu) in Limestone, Maine or snakeheads in New York grab people's attention, but the spread of more commonly known species (largemouth bass, northern pike, rainbow smelt, black crappie) constitutes the greatest threat in Maine.

HOW WIDESPREAD IS THIS PROBLEM?

Between 2008 and 2016 MDIFW fisheries biologists confirmed 75 new unauthorized introductions throughout the state.

WHERE DO THESE INTRODUCTIONS OCCUR?

In the past the vast majority of introductions occurred in southern, central, and coastal Maine. In recent years invasive fish are being established at a higher rate in western and northern regions where most of Maine's wild brook trout and Arctic char populations are located.

When a non-native or invasive species are illegally introduced into a waterbody, those species:

1. Prey upon existing fish species in that waterbody.
2. Compete with existing fish species for food and habitat.
3. Spread to other waterbodies (upstream and downstream) that are connected to the original water. This expands the range of the new species and continues impacting other existing fish populations.
4. Increase the potential for fish diseases to be spread and for the introduction of new diseases from outside of Maine. Existing Maine regulations on the importation of live fish and health screening requirements for authorized transfers have prevented the spread of most fish diseases into Maine from neighboring states.

Once an introduced fish species becomes established in a waterbody the fish community is FOREVER CHANGED!

WHAT CAN YOU, THE ANGLER, DO?

Properly dispose of unused bait. Always dispose of unwanted baitfish on land or in the trash. DO NOT release any live baitfish into a waterbody!

Anglers are strongly encouraged to harvest all northern pike, muskellunge, walleye, and black crappie and not release them back to the water alive.

Follow fishing regulations. Regulations that restrict anglers to fly-fishing only, artificial lures only , or preclude the use or possession of live fish are often intended to prevent the introduction of new fish species to sensitive areas of the state. Please follow all regulations in regards to the use of terminal gear (tackle) as stated in the fishing lawbook.

Report introductions. If you observe a person releasing live fish into a waterbody, gather any information on the person's description, boat hull number or vehicle license plate number if applicable. Report your observation by calling Operation Game Thief at 1-800-253-7887.

If you catch a fish species that you believe is not known to inhabit a waterbody take a picture and/or kill the fish and freeze it immediately and contact the nearest regional MDIFW Office listed on inside back cover.

WHICH SPECIES ARE MOST OFTEN INTRODUCED AND THE PROBLEMS THAT THEY CAUSE?

Largemouth Bass: If a waterbody already contains smallmouth bass, largemouth bass commonly outcompete smallmouths reducing their overall abundance. If a trout stocking program is active in a waterbody that largemouth bass become established in, the bass prey upon the stocked trout. This decreases angler catch rates for trout and may prompt MDIFW biologists to stop stocking trout altogether if predation rates on stocked trout become unacceptably high. Introduced largemouth bass have also decimated baitfish populations in many waters, eliminating opportunities to harvest baitfish, both recreationally and commercially.

Northern Pike: Pike introductions create a significant change to the fish population structure within a waterbody. They will prey upon any available forage species (smelt, shiners, fallfish, and perch) as well as game fish (bass, pickerel, and both wild and stocked trout and salmon species). This reduces the overall abundance of both forage and game fish, which has drastic impacts to anglers over time.

Muskellunge: Muskies negatively impact wild brook trout populations in Maine. Due to their preference for cool-water habitat muskie actively prey upon native minnow species and brook trout, while also pushing out brook trout from slow water habitat. This reduces the overall abundance of brook trout in ponds and rivers where muskie are present, which greatly reduces angler catch rates of trout over time.

Black Crappie: Black crappie compete for forage with existing fish species when introduced to a waterbody. Due to their fast growth rates and high productivity, crappie can quickly become abundant. A unique life history trait exhibited by crappie is large-scale downstream movement of young-of- year fish. This allows for quick colonization of downstream waters.

Smallmouth Bass: When smallmouth bass are introduced into waters with wild brook trout populations they prey upon the brook trout and compete with trout for food and available habitat. As the bass population becomes more abundant they will reduce or extirpate brook trout and spread into accessible waters upstream or downstream.

Landlocked Alewife: Landlocked alewives compete with smelt populations, often reducing the abundance of smelt in a waterbody.

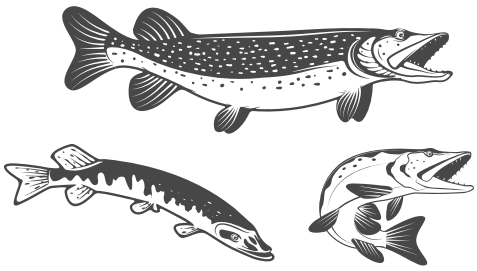
This change produces a profound negative impact to landlocked salmon because smelt are the primary forage for landlocked salmon. Reduced smelt abundance decreases landlocked salmon growth and abundance, along with angler satisfaction.

Rainbow Smelt: Smelt are common in many waters and are native to Maine. Though often used for bait, their introduction into wild brook trout ponds and small-sized Arctic char waters cause significant negative impacts to trout and char because adult smelt prey on the young of both species.

WHY IS IT DIFFICULT TO REMOVE FISH ONCE INTRODUCED?

The removal of unwanted organisms from aquatic environments (water) is much harder to address compared to terrestrial environments (land). Special fishing regulations to limit population growth of an introduced species are generally ineffective over the long term. The use of rotenone to chemically reclaim a waterbody is highly effective, but its use is limited to smaller lakes and ponds due to the high costs and the impracticality of achieving complete removal in larger waterbodies with extensive tributary systems.

The illegal introduction of any fish into any Maine water is a Class E crime, punishable by fines up to $10,000! The Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife is offering a minimum reward of $2,000 for information leading to the apprehension of persons responsible for the illegal introduction of fish. Call Operation Game Thief at 1-800-253-7887. ■



FISHING WITH SOFT PLASTICS

All of these lures were found in the stomach of a 14 pound Lake Trout caught by George Manley of Sidney, Maine in Maranacook Lake in 2009.

THREE WAYS TO DISPOSE OF YOUR SOFT PLASTIC BAITS

Don't throw your used soft plastic baits into the water! As mentioned elsewhere in this lawbook, bringing a small Ziploc bag to collect used baits until you get off the water is an excellent idea. But what happens when you get done fishing? Here are your top three options:

- Recycle canisters: There are bait recycle canisters located on a number of Maine lakes. These are similar to the line recycling canisters. Simply deposit your used soft plastic baits into these canisters at the end of the day.
- Local recycle programs: Check with your local fishing club or retailer to see if they are involved in a bait recycling program.
- Trash bin: If there isn't a bait recycle canister available, simply toss it in the trash.

You wouldn't throw your plastic water bottle overboard — don't toss your soft plastic baits, either.

PROPERLY HANDLING SOFT PLASTIC BAITS

Soft plastic baits are popular fishing tackle. Many discarded plastic baits are ending up on lake bottoms or in fish stomachs. Fish often ingest these baits off the bottom, and they may impact fish health.

You can do your part to make sure that plastic baits are handled properly. Never discard or dump used soft plastic baits into the water! Dispose of your used baits properly in a trash can. Keep an eye out for ReBaits® recycling canisters at several boat launches in southern and central Maine. Used plastic baits placed in ReBaits® collection canisters are recycled into new plastic baits and made available to kids fishing derbies for free.

The best thing you can do is inspect your soft plastic bait frequently. After catching a fish, make sure your bait is still intact. If your bait is worn and will likely fall off, replace it with a new bait, re-hook it or repair it.

You can also extend the useful life of your plastic baits quite easily. Use a small o-ring or cinched small zip-tie in the middle of the bait, and place your hook right under the o-ring or zip-tie. That way, if your hook pulls through the bait, the o-ring or zip-tie will help retain your bait.

Help ensure the health of future fisheries. Discarded soft plastic baits are trash. Please replace any worn baits while fishing and dispose of these baits properly. ■

Maximum length limit on Landlocked Salmon and Brown Trout: 25 inches

Sea-run Atlantic salmon occur in many of Maine's inland waters where landlocked Atlantic salmon and brown trout may also exist. Sea-run Atlantic salmon are listed as endangered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and therefore may not be fished or harvested. Sea-run Atlantic salmon exhibit a variety of color phases (see pictures) from black to silver to brown, and can look similar to brown trout and landlocked Atlantic salmon in coloration. Therefore, establishing a 25 inch maximum length limit (S-33) on waters where adult Atlantic salmon may occur ensures anglers will not inadvertently "take" a misidentified endangered fish. Any Atlantic salmon incidentally caught must be released immediately, alive and uninjured. At no time should Atlantic salmon be removed from the water. ■

Fish Consumption Advisory

WARNING ABOUT EATING FRESHWATER FISH

Mercury in Maine freshwater fish may harm the babies of pregnant and nursing mothers, and young children.

- Pregnant and nursing women, women who may get pregnant, and children under age 8 SHOULD NOT EAT ANY freshwater fish from Maine's inland waters. Except for brook trout and landlocked salmon, one meal per month is safe.
- All other adults and children older than 8 CAN EAT two freshwater fish meals per month. For brook trout and landlocked salmon, the limit is one meal per week.

Some Maine waters are polluted, requiring additional limits to eating fish.

Fish caught in some Maine waters have high levels of PCBs, Dioxins or DDT in them. These chemicals can cause cancer and other health effects. The Bureau of Health recommends additional fish consumption limits on the waters listed below. Remember to check the mercury guidelines. If the water you are fishing is listed below, check the mercury guideline above and follow the most limiting guidelines. ■
